President Says U. S. Will Never Give Aid to Lenin-
Trotzky Government

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service
Correspondent,
Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 6.—
There will be no aid given the

He made this very plain to an audience that packed every available space.

He stated that they had refused to allow the Russian people any voice in their own affairs. The President also declared that the Armenian massacres were horrible and warned his hearers that all Armenia may be wiped out while the treaty of Versailles is in force.

The Kansas City welcome was the best that the President has had up to the present time. Although it was Saturday morning, the streets were lined with cheering crowds who came to greet the chief executive and his wife.

hall also was filled to overflowing. The audience was in complete sympathy with the presidential spirit and his various sallies were cheered and applauded.

One departure that the President

SAYS FOOD SALE BY POST CAN BE RESUMED

Major Swanton Declares Hurley Criticisms Lack Basis on Fact

Resigning the statement of Acting Postmaster Hurley in regard to the sale of government food, Major K. B. Swanton of the army has today declared that Mr. Hurley was stating the issues. He asserted that Mr. Hurley started the controversy over the holding up of orders, his reason being that a few popular items of canned foods, such as peas, beans and corn, were out of stock.

Major Swanton said that Mr. Hurley should have investigated the congested condition of the postal warehouses before making any criticism. "There is no question," said Major Swanton, "why the sale cannot be resumed immediately. Within twenty-four hours Mr. Hurley will have in his hands the revenue of all the food commodities on hand for the Boston post district, and this includes beans, peas and corn."

In regard to food sales in general, Major Swanton believes there is opportunity to resume permanently the sale of food for retailers and consumers. He said that the sale of food for retailers and consumers would be resumed as soon as the government had a sufficient supply of food. He thought the plan might be applied to all necessary commodities and not confined to foods.

DEFEAT PLAN TO JAIL "WET" OFFENDERS

Washington, Sept. 6.—An effort to make violations of the prohibition laws punishable by jail sentences was defeated in the U. S. House.

Senator Curtis, Kansas, introduced an amendment which would provide that violations of the prohibition laws should be punishable by a fine of $100 or more, or imprisonment for not less than thirty days nor more than one year.

Senator Sterling of South Dakota, in charge of the bill, refused to accept the amendment, claiming that the question of jail sentences should be left to the determination of the courts.

$100,000 for Pershing, Nothing for Wales, New York Decides

New York, Sept. 6.—The Board of Aldermen has appropriated $100,000 for the entertainment of General Pershing on his arrival from France, but has refused to contribute to the reception of the Duke of Wales on his visit to the city.

A motion to the entertainment of the Prince at the expense of the city came from three Republican members, Bruce M. Fabbri, William F. Quinn and Clifford S. Root.

Mr. Fabbri said he would oppose use of any part of the appropriation for the reception of the Prince and that the American of Irish descent on the board would do likewise.

GIRLS GIVE UP $500,000 YEAR FOR KEEP OF HUNGARY

Jewish Mothers Sacrifice Daughters to Escape "White" Reign of Terror

Exclusive Cable to the International News Service and the London Daily Express.

Vienna, Sept. 6.—The price of a Jewish girl's escape from terror-ridden Hungary is her honor. This revelation today in the latest tragic horror that is sweeping the Jewish population of the former monarchy.

An American officer attached to the Rumanian army related here a Jewish mother of high standing, who had been educated in England, begged him to get her family out of Budapest.

The woman's young daughter was offered to the American as his reward for the mother's plea that she was willing to make this sacrifice rather than allow the girl to fall into the hands of the Hungarian police stations. It is charged the Rumanian police have been guilty of stripping Jewish girls, including them and selling all of their money except a sum of possibly $100—sufficient to last them only a few days.

Mothers in Budapest are offering their daughters to officers of the Rumanian army in exchange for the money to escape to the "White Terror" reign in the days of Bela Kun. This campaign of terror has been conducted with more or less success and it is only now that the true facts are being revealed, that the world will have to wait for the full story of what the Jews are still undergoing in Hungary. This appears to be a widespread conspiracy to suppress the facts.

Premier Friedrich's government, backed by Rumanian sequences, asserts that anti-Semitism is a national reaction from Bolshevism. It is charged by some, however, that this is not true that the overthrow of communism was the signal for wholesale persecution of Jews. Plans for pogroms have been maturing for months. It is alleged and they were carried out immediately when the opportunity offered.

MINNEAPOLIS PLANS PARADE FOR WILSON

Minneapolis, Sept. 6.—President Wilson will be escorted to the city by a military band when he arrives for his address here next Monday, according to plans made by Governor J. A. Hargrave, Mayor Mark A. Whittier and Mayor Hodgson of St. Paul.

President Wilson's address in the St. Paul Auditorium and the Minneapolis Armory will be open to the public, but he will address the Minnesota Legislature in private.

ROCKPORT MAN DIVES INTO THE HARBOR

Public Looks to Pelletier for Action Against the Beef Trust

We understand that District Attorney Pelletier proposes to investigate and prosecute violation of the law by the beef trust in this community. We hope that the rumor is true. The District Attorney has been able to do very effective work in this general direction in the past. He suppressed the orgy of arson, the organized illicit selling of drugs, and the effective prosecution of the fish trust is still fresh in the public mind. These accomplishments indicate the success of his crusade against the beef trust IF HE UNDERTAKES IT.

The American would like to suggest to him also that the Grand Jury can be utilized for public benefit which is more inclusive than that of finding indictments. With its power to summon witnesses and compel disclosures the District Attorney could not only indict and punish criminally those who violated the law, but he could also ascertain through the Grand Jury proceedings the method by which the spirit of the law is broken, while the letter is kept. Wealthy combinations usually try to keep within the technical letter of the law and pay large sums of money to attorneys for this purpose. By discovering their methods and making these methods unlawful some progress, at least, can be achieved in addition to criminal punishments.

We recall in the crusade against the "dope" sellers Mr. Pelletier and his able assistant, Mr. Webster, utilized the information then obtained from the Grand Jury for constructive legislation against the legal methods of selling these habit-forming drugs, and it has done a great deal of good in the community.

The community has certainly been looking to its prosecuting officers for action and we trust that we will not be disappointed in Mr. Pelletier's action.

Two Important Petitions for the Referendum

We call attention to the character of names upon a petition invoking the constitutional amendment under our new Initiative and Referendum provision. The plan for which the following gentlemen seek constitutional action to erect a State forest of 250,000 acres:

Former Senator John W. Weeks,
Senator David I. Walsh,
Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard;
Levi H. Greenwood, former president of the Senate;
Charles L. Ayling of Barnstable,
William A. Gallup of North Adams,
Charles H. Keith of Greenfield,
Yakimian T. Kidder of Milton,
Joseph A. Skinner of Holyoke,
George W. Wheelwright, Jr., of Boston,
John M. Woods of Somerville,
H. A. Moses of Russell.

It is a good plan—a very necessary plan. All such plans are real steps toward a permanent reduction in the cost of living, and it is interesting to observe the names which appear upon it.

So much for one petition under the Initiative and Referendum. The other petition is mothered by a lone woman, Miss Edna Lawrence Spencer. It would invoke the judgment of our people upon her plan to aid poor mothers who need aid at the critical period of childbirth. Miss Spencer's plan also is in the same direction as that of the gentlemen who propose to establish a public forest. No greater waste, resulting in the high cost of living, can be found than the waste of human life which is involved in child-bearing under poverty-stricken conditions. The American has often observed that in our haphazard, thoughtless, incompetent national career, in which the dominant law is "Everybody for himself, the devil take the hindmost," we have not given to free, white citizens even the value that was given to slaves before the Civil War. In these days a little slave child was worth on the market from $300 to $500. They were even assessed BY THE STATE at a great deal more than is proposed to pay the mother to assure the life of the child and of the mother, while the slave mother herself was worth from $1,000 to $1,500.

That splendid organization known as the Child Bureau has disclosed to us the fact that the death rate among the children born under extremely poor conditions is three times more than normal. If we would take the care of our free white citizens in childbirth that the slaveholder took of negro slave women we would make haste to pass the mothers' aid bill which was rejected by the Legislature last year, and which Miss Spencer now submits to the judgment of the people.

Boston's Highest Tax Rate

Boston's tax rate has been announced as $23.60 per $1,000 for 1919. It is the highest tax rate in the history of Boston, but this should not discount Mayor Peters or the City Council. The tax rate is high through no fault of theirs. Indeed, if the American were to criticize the Mayor and the City Council it would be to suggest that the tax rate has been kept down by some very doubtful economies. For example, the police undoubtedly should have more pay, and so should a great many other classes of the city employees.

Everything has gone up in cost in this country, and, of course, the cost of running a great city must go up also. The wonder is not that it has gone up, but that it has gone up so little. If our city government were operated for private profit we venture the assertion that the tax rate today would be not $23, but $43 on the thousand, for if the increased income derived by the city government to meet the increased cost of operation were in proportion to the increase demanded by our public service corporations, our tax rate would be nearer $50 than $23.60.

But we do not have disinterested servants to the public in our public service corporations privately managed.

More Truth Than Poetry

WHAT'S A MAN TO DO?

By S. E. KISER

PERMIT me, girls, to tell you why
You add to my perplexities.
No man loves beauty more than I—
It throws me into ecstasies.
To me a pretty girl's a treat;
Her graces cause me to forget
The obligations I must meet.
The tasks I have not finished yet;
But when a lovely girl to whom
I've not been introduced is near
I must not openly presume
To let my happiness appear.

I KNOW that she will think me rude
If I permit my gaze to stray
Too often where she sits, imbued
With graces that have charmed away
The troubles that I had before
I found enchantment in her face;
Yet if I look down at the floor
Or turn to gaze through empty space,
Pretending not to see or care
About her figure or her dress,
I know that she will wonder where
I lost my taste for loveliness.

AWARE that I have seen that she
Is in possession of the charms
That ought to bring to life in me
The wish to take her in my arms,
She tries to cause me to believe
That my existence is ignored;
Yet she is gladdened to perceive
That secretly she is adored.
She has no wish to hear my praise,
She scorns me as a would-be flirt
If I permit myself to gaze,
And if I fail to look she's hurt.

GIRLS, what's a man to do? You try
To turn his head, and when that's done
You grill him with a look, or by
A word you make him wish to run.

Registered, U. S. Patent Office.
By K. C. B.

IT'S A silly little toy.
WITH A little blade.
JUST LIKE the propeller.
OF AN aeroplane.
AND YOU put the propeller.
ON A little knob.
AND WIND a string.
ALL AROUND the spool.
AND PULL the string.
AND THE little propeller.
SHOOTS UP in the air.
AND SAILS around.
FOR THE longest time.
AND GOES into a glide.
AND CIRCLES down.
AND MAYBE you find it.
AND MAYBE you don't.
AND I bought one.
AT THE village store.
AND TOOK it home.
AND THE very first day.
I LOST six blades.
AND HAD to get more.
AND 16 cents.
BUYS HALF a dozen.
AND WHY ever I did it.
I REALLY don't know.
BUT I'd lost so many.
AND IT'S so silly.
THAT I was ashamed.
TO GO back to the store.
AND BUY more blades.
SO I told the fellows.
WITH WHOM I play.
THAT I'D give 10 cents.
FOR EVERY blade.
THEY FOUND in the grass.
OR DOWN in the brush.
AND THE whole crowd searched.
AND IT only found one.
OUT OF sixteen lost.
AND THAT very night.
WE LOST four more.
WHICH WAS all we had.

BUT in the morning.
AN AUTHOR gentleman.
WHO LIVES near me.
CAME INTO our house.
WITH TWO of the blades.
THAT HE said he'd found.
IN A bunch of weeds.
BY THE side of the road.
AND HE wouldn't leave.
TILL I'D paid him a dime.
FOR EACH of the blades.
AND ALONG about noon.
HE FOUND three more.
AND AS fast as he'd find them.
FOR A dime apiece.
THEY'D BE lost again.
BUT THIS author guy.
JUST KEPT trailing around.
DOWN in the brush.
AND IN the long grass.
JUST LOOKING for blades.
AND FINDING them.
UNTIL HE'D found forty.
WITHIN THREE days.
AND I paid him $4.
AND WENT out of business.
AND NOW I find out.
THAT HE bought the things.
AT TWO for a nickel.
AND PRETENDED to find them.
AND SOLD them to me.
FOR A dime apiece.
AND WITH THE $4.
HE BOUGHT a toy aeroplane.
AND I'VE stolen the spring.
AND HE CAN'T make it work.

GRAVITY AND THE MODERN AIRSHIP FLIGHT

By Garrett P. Serviss

"DES an aeroplane violate the law of gravity?—C. T. S. asks. How did you come to imagine that an aeroplane could violate the law of gravitation? You might as well suppose that a bird violates it. Yet, you are evidently by no means singular in entertaining such a notion, for two or three others have asked the same question. It is so plain that this great law is not as familiar to everybody as it ought to be. In fact, however, there are some peculiar things about it, which you could hardly be blamed for not knowing, unless you are a student of physics.

For instance, everybody knows that the force called gravitation, or gravity, makes any heavy object that is unsupported from beneath, fall toward the ground, or toward the centre of the earth, which is the focus toward which the force acts. But when the body is supported, as by a table, gravity draws upon it just the same, but the body does not move, because the resistance of the table exceeds the gravitational force, and the effect of the latter is felt simply in the form of a steady pressure.

There is here no violation of the law, for the body obeys by pressing upon the table, just as truly as it would obey by falling if the table were taken away. When the body is supported, or kept from falling, we call the effect produced upon it by gravity, its weight. But when it falls, the effect of gravity is called acceleration. Technically, this means the increase of velocity that gravity imparts to the body during each second of its fall. For objects near the earth's surface this increase, or acceleration, is a constant quantity, amounting to about 32 feet per second—per second, i. e., the velocity of a falling body (neglecting air resistance) increases 32 feet every successive second.

In scientific calculations the acceleration of gravity is a thing of immense importance, and scientists men have a short name for it, the letter "g." If you asked a Ph.D. how fast a body would be going after it had fallen one minute, he would reply, if he was the right kind of Ph.D., and was also in a hurry, "Sixty g." From what has been said above, see if you can figure out why that answer is correct. It being understood that atmospheric resistance is neglected.

Flight Principles

When an aeroplane is in flight, it obeys the law of gravitation in the same way that the body supported by the table obeys it, viz., by pressing with its weight upon the air. But, since the air is not dense enough to resist this pressure, except in small part, the aeroplane would fall if it had not another means of support. And if it did fall, the resistance of the air would increase, until, in certain circumstances, it might become great enough to balance the pull of gravity, and so arrest the descent. But even then there would be no violation of the law.

Now, let us see what that other means of support is which enables the aeroplane effectively to resist its weight upon the thin air. It is a force derived from the engines, driving the plane ahead at such a speed that the upward component of the air resistance, or air pressure, equals the downward pull of gravity. The effect may be likened to that of a wind on a kite. The kite would fall in a calm, but the swiftly moving air driving against its sloping surface, balances the downward effect of its weight, so that it soars in spite of its constant obedience to gravity, which never ceases to impart the same weight to it. The weight is balanced by another force, that is all.

Curious Fact of Gravitation
In the case of the aeroplane the sustaining force is produced by the rapid motion of the machine through the air; in that of the kite it is the rapid motion of the air that produces the sustaining force. The one is the equivalent of the other, because action and reaction must always be equal.

Here is another curious fact about gravitation—it acts with practical instantaneousness at all distances. If two bodies were suddenly created, one 10,000 miles from the earth and the other 1,000,000 miles, both would be gripped by the earth's attraction at the same instant, although the amount of that attraction would be ten thousand times greater on the nearer than on the more distant body.

WORRY OVER FUTURE IS FOLLY FOR FIANCE

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

It looks sometimes as if, not finding our trouble crop a very large one, we are tempted to do a little intensive farming in order to secure a more abundant harvest.

Here is a letter from a young man who is suffering a terrible attack of the well-known disease, the New England conscience. He begins by going to some extent into the family history, for he attributes most of his worries to hereditary influences.

"My father," he says, "was a good business man and had a great deal of money, but he always made the life of my mother and the lives of every one about him extremely bitter. He was never content.

"Now, although I have tried hard not to take after him, it is no avail. I find that I am exactly like him in every way, except that he was religious and I am not.

"I became acquainted with a young lady two years ago, and we are at present engaged; but I hate to marry her because I feel that I can never make her happy, although I love her. I do not know what to do; it will break her heart to part from me, as she cares for me a great deal. I have told her how bad I am, but she does not seem to mind. She says I will make no difference to her.

"But will she always feel that way? My mother was a saint, but she could not always reconcile herself to my father's crankiness.

Loves to Spend

"There is another worthless thing about me. I am earning a good salary and have all my expenses paid by the man I love, but still I can't save half as much as I should. I just love to spend money. So, you see that, all in all, I am hardly worth the love of a sweet, innocent girl, and to embitter her future seems a crime. So what would you advise me to do?"

I should advise you first not to take yourself so seriously. At the moment we begin to take ourselves very seriously we also begin to take ourselves very sadly, and so add to the general gloom which is a crime.

And next, stop darning your future and that of the girl to whom you are engaged, in black. Since you are going to be married, it is as much her future as it is yours, and she may prefer it done in rose color. Anyway, what is the use of brooding about that future? To-day offers quite enough to occupy anyone's attention. "Take no thought of the morrow," and "No one knoweth what a day may bring forth" would be wise words for you to ponder frequently and endeavor to assimilate their spirit.

Detach yourself, and look at the matter from the outside. It is the straight case, isn't it? You are a young man with excellent business connections, engaged to a girl whom you love and who loves you. But on the brink of marriage you are shy like a horse frightened at its own shadow.

Psychological Trouble

It seems to me that the whole trouble is a psychological one. It is evident that your father's vituperative temper and your mother's consequent unhappiness impressed you very deeply as a child, and you are suffering now from the effect of those early impressions.

But look at the question sensibly. Perhaps your father might not have been so cranky if your mother had understood him better and had not taken his peculiarities so much to heart. One never can tell.

The girl you are going to marry may have an entirely different disposition. Let us hope she has a sense of humor; always laugh you out of this idea that you are impossible to live with. She probably has a temper of her own also. This would not be human if she had not. And you and she do not have to duplicate the lives of your father and mother. You have no doubt very different ideas and views from the ones they hold, and it is hardly likely that you will meet with the same experiences.

It never pays to be afraid of life. As long as you believe that anything has the power to hurt you, it will certainly and sorely torment you; but if you resolve to take the day as it comes, go—naturally, earnestly and determined to enjoy it, you will find plenty of things in it that are good and glad.
